Architects – min five years' experience + relocation opportunity

ACME is seeking architects or architectural designers with a minimum of five years' work experience to join a team working on a significant mixed-use project in Dublin. The project will initially be run from our London office, but we are particularly interested in applicants who would be willing to relocate to Dublin in later stages.

ACME is a London-based practice operating in the fields of contemporary architecture, urban planning, interior and product design; working with private, corporate and public clients.

We are looking for exceptional and enthusiastic architects and designers of package or project leader calibre for this mixed-use, high-profile project, ideally with experience of projects in Ireland.

Ideal candidates should have:

- Professional experience across all RIBA/ RIAI stages, excellent design and technical skills, together with knowledge of design development, tender and construction documentation
- Experience with mixed-use schemes in the UK or, ideally, in Ireland
- proficiency in AutoCAD, Revit, Rhino and Adobe Suite
- A minimum of five years' post-qualification professional experience
- Excellent communication skills including a fluency in written and spoken English

They will also bring the right blend of confidence, patience, management skills and humour to complement a young and dynamic studio environment.

A competitive salary will be offered depending on experience. Full time position.

Please include a cover letter stating your visa status, notice period and salary expectations along with your CV and portfolio.

Applications should be made to hr@acme.ac (PDF, max 8MB, subject line: Architect 0819)

ACME is an equal opportunities employer.
Only successful candidates will be contacted.
